The Random Lake Klappter

Once upon a time four kids went to the Random Lake Beach. They all went swimming in the lake to find stuff to decorate their sandcastles. When they were looking for seashells they saw something poking out of the water. It looked like a stick so they went to grab it. When they grabbed it they tugged back but it would not let loose. Two seconds later a big head came out of the water! The kids screamed "A MONSTER!" Their parents thought it was a joke but it was not. Then the whole thing came out of the water and almost ate them but luckily they were too fast. Then they all came running to shore and told their parents that a monster lived in the middle of the lake. But they did not believe them and the Random Lake Klappter was never seen again.
